Leghorn, May 30.

ON Monday the 19th Inſtant, about Eleven o'Clock, arrived here their Royal Highneſſes the Grand Duke and Grand Dutcheſs of Tuſcany, accompanied with a large Suite of Nobility, Foreign Miniſters, and other Perſons of Diſtinction. The Road without the Piſa Gate was lined with two Battalions of Soldiers, through which their Royal Highneſſes paſſed amidſt the Firing of Cannon, and the Acclamations of an innumerable Crowd of People. When they arrived at the Gate, his Royal Highneſs was preſented by the Governor with the Keys of the City; after which their Royal Highneſſes proceeded to the Royal Palace ſituated upon the Great Place. The Houſes were every where decorated with Carpets, Damaſk, and other Ornaments, and the Windows crowded with Spectators, ſo that there never was a more ſplendid Entrance ſeen upon any Occaſion. At the Door of the Palace their Royal Highneſſes were met by the Chief Magiſtrates of the Town; and above Stairs, in the State Apartment, were aſſembled the principal Italian and Foreign Ladies, the latter of which were preſented to their Royal Highneſſes by the Conſuls of their reſpective Nations. In the Afternoon the Exhibition of the Publick Games began: A Circus had been erected, for this Purpoſe, upon the Great Place, capable of containing many Thouſands of People; beſides which the Houſes and Palaces overlooking it, were capable of containing many more. The Magiſtrates had the Honor of entertaining their Royal Highneſſes firſt with a Horſe-Race: This was the only Shew exhibited that Day. In the Evening their Royal Highneſſes went to the Theatre, accompanied by a great Number of the Chief of the Citizens, who had aſſembled together, of their own Accord, to conduct them there with Torches. The Great Street, as well as the Place and the Circus, the lower Story of which was diſpoſed into near 200 Shops, and decorated with all Sorts of the richeſt and moſt coſtly Merchandize, were finely illuminated upon the Occaſion.

On the 20th, early in the Morning, his Royal Highneſs viſited the Mole, and went aboard one of his Men of War, being ſaluted by all the Engliſh Ships, who had gone out into the Road for this Purpoſe, as he paſſed by. At Noon he received the Principal Merchants of the different Factories ſettled here, they being preſented by their reſpective Conſuls; and in the Afternoon he was entertained with a Calcio, or Harpaſtrum, given by the Engliſh Merchants. Nothing could be more magnificent than the Apparatus for this very ancient and noble Game: Two very magnificent Pavilions were erected in different Parts of the Circus; and each Diviſion, conſiſting of Fifty Combatants, beſides Commanders and other Officers with their Pages amounting to about Ten more, ſo that the whole conſiſted of 120 Perſons, were dreſſed, one Diviſion in blue, the other in red Sattin, richly adorned with Silver and other Ornaments, according to their different Ranks. When the Colours ſaluted their Royal Highneſſes, a great Number of ſmall Mortars were fired, and ſeveral Bands of Muſick ſtruck up: Afterwards the Charge was ſounded, and the Play began; the Victory however was not decided this Day, as the Evening drew on too faſt. Nothing could be more magnificent than the whole Appearance, which was rendered compleat by the innumerable Spectators with which the Circus and the Houſes, even the very Tops of them, were crouded. In the Evening their Royal Highneſſes went again to the Theatre.

The 21ſt High Maſs, and a ſolemn Te Deum was ſung at the Church of the Madonna, which was finely decorated, at the Expence of the Spaniſh and Neapolitan Factories, for the ſafe Arrival of their Royal Highneſſes at this City. In the Afternoon their Royal Highneſſes went to a magnificent Building, erected at the Mole by the Dutch, in order to ſee a Boat-Race, which they had prepared to divert their Royal Highneſſes with. All the Ships were finely dreſſed out upon this Occaſion, ſo that the whole made a prodigious fine Coup d'Œil; and their Royal Highneſſes expreſſed the greateſt Satisfaction. This Evening, as alſo the following ones, concluded as before.

The 22d, in the Afternoon, the French Nation exhibited a Chariot-Race, after the Manner uſed at the Olympic Games; no Accident happened upon this Occaſion, and the whole ſucceeded very well.

The 23d the Engliſh repeated the Calcio, when Victory declared for the blue.

Saturday the 24th the Jews gave a Horſe-Race: And Sunday concluded the Feaſts with a fine Proceſſion of all the different Combatants concerned in the above Shews, in their ſeveral Dreſſes.

Monday Morning their Royal Highneſſes gave Audience of Leave: And in the Afternoon left the City, after having viſited every Thing curious in it, to the great Regret of every Body, being highly ſatisfied with their Reception, and leaving us ſome Hopes of their returning in the Month of September next, to make a longer Stay.

They dined every Day in Public, ſhewed the greateſt Condeſcenſion and Affability; and when they went away, left to the Governor and other Principal Officers very handſome Preſents, and to each of the Conſuls of the Foreign Factories, who had given Publick Diverſions, a very fine Diamond Ring. And the Great Duke confirmed the Privileges, granted by his Predeceſſors, to Foreigners who come and ſettle there.
